PROGRAM

KATHY LARSON introduced Devin Riley, from Caldwell, ID who had a career in law enforcement for 20+ years. He was on the board for Special Olympics for three years, retired and went to work for them as Director of Development and has been involved with the organization for five years.

Jacob Kerr, born in Anchorage, AK and has participated in basketball, snowboarding, golf with the Special Olympics. He has traveled to Washington D.C. where he met with senators and congressmen advocating for Special Olympics and those with disabilities. Jake has won a gold medal in basketball and bronze in golf. They will be talking about their experience in the world games in Berlin, Germany, where there were 137 U.S. delegations of athletes.

Overall, the Special Olympics works with individuals and team athletes. Unified partners are adults with no development disabilities that partner with an athlete with developmental disabilities. The partnership fosters a sense of acceptance, increases inclusion, promotes social understanding, promotes friendships. As a society we need to get better at these things and the Special Olympics is a way to engage more in these areas. You can become a volunteer or become an athlete.
