Don't Miss Next Week's Program

Nearly everybody knows that Jonathan Moody is more than just the SOB (son of boss) at Moody Nolan, a family business, who rose to become its chief executive. His dad, Curt Moody, said that his son played chess as a child, and he had the ability to think eight or nine moves ahead. Jonathan even competed in international chess tournaments.

Well, Jonathan Moody has also become an impactful spokesperson for equity in many facets of our lives. And next Tuesday, Oct. 1, Jonathan will be our speaker at Columbus Rotary with a discussion he calls "Closing the Gap". He will discuss the importance of closing the gap of economic prosperity.

Opportunity does not knock until somebody builds the door

By Steve Sundre

Opportunity is certainly knocking today on the door that Columbus Rotary built for --

- the career education students we reward for excellence,
- for the corporate sponsors we recruit,
- for the membership we hope to grow,
- for the networking we hope to revitalize,
- and for the mentoring we provide for the future economic development of our community.

Our Columbus Rotary Career Path Awards program has earned its place as among the most unique programs of any service organization in the nation...
