Guest Speaker/Program

Today's program speaker is Dr. Vahid Majidi. Dr Majidi is the president and Director of the Savannah River Nation Laboratory. The laboratory is designated as the United States Department of Energy's Environmental Management Laboratory and provides strategic scientific and technological direction and program support for the nation's 6 billion per year legacy waste clean-up program. Dr. Majidi discussed the history of the laboratory and its current mission. Research areas include environment and legacy management, national security, and emerging technology. Community involvement was discussed. The laboratory provides grants to teachers to bring innovative STEM projects to life in the classroom.

Bill led us in reciting the four-way test and then adjourned the meeting.
