Kenneth Jones is an attorney in the Augusta Regional Office of the Georgia Legal Services Program. He is from Cedar Town, Ga. He discussed the history of the GLSP and cited several important cases: the Piedmont Case and the Herman Case. The program has 10 regional offices. The GLS program is a private nonprofit funded by the federal government. They provide free legal services for civil cases. They help people who make less than $27,000 a year or less 200% of the Federal poverty level. Most of the cases are family law, housing cases, education cases, consumer cases, and guardianship. As mandated by Congress, the GLSP program can not do criminal cases, redistricting, fee generating cases or represent federal and state prisoners.

President Faye led us in reciting the four-way test and then adjourned the meeting.
