J. Alan Fagan

Hailing from the rural Midwest, J. settled along the Central California Coast in the fall of 2001. Formerly an Arabic language student at the Defense Language Institute Foreign Language

Center and Veteran of the United States Army, J. and his wife Elisabeth have made their home in Marina, California. J. is actively involved in supporting his community through service to various boards and committees. He currently Chairs the Board of Access Monterey Peninsula, is the CFO and Treasurer for the DLI Foundation, serves on the MPUSD Citizens Bond Oversight and Facilities Advisory Committees, and is an associate member of the United Veterans Council. J. advocates for Veterans' issues throughout the Central Coast, particularly through support for the Veterans Transition Center and Central Coast Veterans Cemetery Foundation.

J. graduated with his bachelors in accounting from DeVry University and is an Enrolled Agent, licensed to represent tax-payers before the Internal Revenue Service. J. is the Founder and CEO of The Mattox Group consulting firm, which provides accounting support, business development, tax representation and preparation services, and human resources consulting for small businesses and not-for-profit organizations. J. is a fellow of the National Tax Practice Institute and is preparing for admission to practice before the United States Tax Court. J. enjoys attending San Jose Earthquakes soccer matches and traveling with Elisabeth.

Jim Oggerino

Jim earned a B.S. degree in Nuclear Engineering from North Carolina State University. Subsequently he obtained a California Professional Engineer's license. Jim worked six years on a nuclear-rocket propelled, manned-mission to Mars. He developed complex computer models and identified a manufacturing defect in nozzle pressure transducers that was plaguing the testing program.

Jim left the rocket program to work domestically and internationally in the commercial electric power industry. GE work included international technical marketing of Nuclear Plant Components in Japan to Hitachi and Toshiba. Subsequently assigned as a Liaison Engineer in Switzerland, and was domiciled with his family in Zurich from 1976 through 1979.

In 1983, Jim joined EPRI (the Electric Power Research Institute). At any given time about 1200 projects were in process in Generation, Transmission, Distribution, and Environment. Jim performed a comprehensive, two-year study for EPRI Management, comprising 100 senior electric utility executives and 1,000 staff at nine operating utilities. The goal of the study was to determine the organizational, institutional, and cultural barriers to the technology transfer of completed EPRI research. Jim and his partner found 84 impediments in 7 categories and issued a report to the industry.

Roger Miller

Roger Miller, born in southeastern Pennsylvania and attended school in Unionville Pennsylvania. After high school Roger attended Lehigh University, a school known for its engineering and business programs, earning a Bachelor of Science degree in Electrical Engineering. Immediately upon graduation, Roger started his career as a construction manager and start-up engineer participating in the construction of several fossil fueled and nuclear power plants. In the 1990's as the construction of new generating plants slowed Roger providing consulting services at operating plants and for clients like the Department of Justice and the Department of energy. In 2000 Roger began his 2nd career providing construction management services to Public Agencies and Private Entities. In 2013 Roger started Eagle Project Management, a small consulting firm that provides construction management and ADA accessibility consulting services.

The oldest of four children, Roger has one brother and two sisters. He has one child,
