Last Week's Program

Local writer and historian Dennis Chastain provided an overview of the Cherokees in the Carolinas. The Cherokee were the largest, most powerful tribe in the Southeast. He debunks some myths, corrects some misinformation we were all taught in school, and shared some interesting facts. He told us about Wampum. It was not currency, as we were taught in school, but in fact a handcrafted belt made of shell beads that was given as an act of good faith. It was given to say, "we mean what we say."
